April 2019

A word from Rocky...

Rocks and lizards are friends if you think about it.

Happy April, everyrock! On rock planet, everything sure rocks, especially in the spring time when the sun comes out and heats up the earth. I love sitting in the hot sun just as much as the other rock, but it sure does suck when a lizard comes and sits on ya and starts soaking up rays. What do you do about that, huh? I find playing really loud rock music is sure to scare those scaley freaks away. Lizards are real prudes, you know. They only listen to classical acoustic organ music. How lame is that? Real lame.

Anyway, I have this rockin charity going on called Rock-It. It's about giving all rocks a chance to rock out. Some rocks are deep underground and dont' know what it's even like to be sat on by a lizard. I mean, that sucks, honestly. My charity digs em up and puts em out in the sun. I think that's important. Every rock should be able to bask in the sunlight,

Rock It Out: Rocks Online

A crazy online war broke out over a picture of someone showing off a massive crack they got from when they fought in a rock battle. It was put online by rock user, whoseFault_lineisitanyway, who claimed they had major rock stats and challenged anyone else to a rock battle in the dome. Something was off about their account though since they didn't have any friends and the account was made 3 hours before the post on Crumble, the rock website. Rocks all over the web started challenging this user and started posting their own cracks and large rock stats. But then it came out that the user was actually just a small pebble who was using someone else's pics. The real pics belonged to an old rock champion from the 1930s.

Rock Of The Month

Cobalt is a nice rock, check him out! He's got a good talent for making gravel. Cobalt got started mixing gravel when he was only 2 years old. It's a good hobby and skill for a rock to have. Cobalt also likes to sing rock ballads. It's good for scaring away lizards. Cobalt has lizard friends who love his singing, though. He said his singing brings all the lizards to his rock garden.

That's what his house is- it's a garden, and all the other rocks are his family. Wow!

Spirituality: Pebbles on the beach

I was taking a walk on the beach the other day and I got tired and stopped moving. I listened to the sound of the waves hitting the sand and realized that if I stayed here too long, then the water would also hit me and slowly it would turn my rough edges smooth. I looked behind me and saw several other pebbles that were all rounded and nice. I thought it would be nice to stay here for a while too, but then I realized that I needed to keep moving.

As I kept moving the water still hit me and my edges got smooth. I'm beautiful now, no more cracks and scars from when I broke away from the rock face down the beach. I'm gorgeous. When the sun rises it shines on my shiny, sea-water drenched head. This taught me you can keep going and still be beautiful. You don't have to stay in one spot in order to fix yourself up. It's okay to put make up on in the car.

Rock News: Watch out for the earth quake

Currently there is an earthquake. It's happening right now. An earthquake is a miracle of life. It will make many more rocks from one. This is called mitosis: when a bigger rock breaks up into smaller rocks. Now there are many other rocks around you. You might split in two also, so be prepared. If you don't want to split in two, go find a lizard to enchant you with a spell to make you not do so. It's happening right now, call the lizard hotline, a phone number which all young rocks are taught and doesn't need to be stated here, because of course you know it.

Don't reread this article or else you will trigger another earthquake, careful
